Disclaimer

The information in this publication has been published by the Cotton Research and Development Corporation (CRDC) and Land & Water Australia (LWA) to assist public knowledge and discussion, and to help improve the sustainable management of land, water and vegetation in the cotton industry. These guidelines have been prepared from research and development studies with specialist input from researchers, practitioners and land managers. However, the guidelines do not purport to address every condition that may exist on riparian land in Australia.

The CRDC and LWA accept no responsibility or liability for any loss or damage caused by reliance on the information, management approaches or recommendations in these guidelines. Users of the guidelines must form their own judgement about the appropriateness to local conditions of a management approach or recommendation in the guidelines.

Users are warned that, by law, the implementation of some of the management approaches and recommendations require prior authorisation from government and environmental agencies. All appropriate government and environmental authorisations from the relevant state/territory agencies must be obtained before implementing a management approach or recommendation in the guidelines. If the user is uncertain about what authorisations are required, he/she should consult the relevant government department or legal adviser.
