The authors have prepared this guide by bringing together information from many other documents and research reports. Where possible, these are referred to in the text, often as sources of further information. In addition, the following people have made major contributions by helping to identify the crucial riparian management issues for cotton growers, and by providing specialist technical knowledge. Their support and assistance is gratefully acknowledged. Particular thanks go to Guy Roth for his enthusiasm and significant contribution (especially with photographs and case studies) to the guide.
